LINDBERGH HAPPY EXAMINING PLANE

YOUTH SCORNS HELP FROM MECHANICS AS INSPECTS HIS SHIP

Finds Reception In His Honor More Tiring Than Trip

LE BOURGET, May 25.—Captain Charles A. Lindbergh was back in his own sphere today, completely happy as he tinkered with wrenches and drills, working as an ordinary mechanic upon his plane, which has been standing in a hangar here since Saturday when Lindbergh arrived on his epochal flight from New York.

The grinning youth seemed hardly able to restrain himself when he arrived at the hangars this morning to work on his machine. He spurned offers from mechanics of overalls and jumpers and unimpressed by the immediate climbing over the plane, examining damage done by souvenir hunters and making arrangements for materials and tools with which to repair the plane.

The young flier made no effort to hide his satisfaction at being back in the world of motors and struts and gasoline and oil.

"I wish I could stay here all day and I wish I could fly a little," Lindbergh told the International News Service correspondent, as he started to work.

"My only chance of being alone is to go up on a flight, but I have too many engagements commencing at noon."

Then Lindbergh outlined his engagements for the day, which include a reception by the Chamber of Deputies, and there was no doubt left that he has found his life of receptions and honors during the past three days more tiring and more exacting than the thirty-three hours he spent on his solo flight across the Atlantic.

As Lindbergh, dragging a step-ladder with him to enable him to reach parts of the plane, worked busily upon the giant machine, French mechanics gathered and stood in their grimy overalls admiring the hero of the hour and remarking upon his intimate knowledge with the intricate mechanical workings of his machine.

Several French mechanics had been assigned to aid Lindbergh, but their admiration exceeded their energy and for the most part they stood by as awe inspired onlookers while the American boy adjusted and tinkered, apparently tickled to death to do all the work himself. Marshal Foch's aide, Captain Hospital, acted as interpreter with a great deal of success. Lindbergh knew only the English mechanical phrases and Captain Hospital knew only the French phrases, and there was a good deal of laughing, expostulation and sign language going on between Lindbergh and the French mechanics as the American attempted to indicate his wants.

With good humor and apparent willingness to undergo any handicaps as long as he could remain with his machine, Lindbergh stumbled over the little groups that had gathered about in a desire to help him, but who actually impeded his work. Always courteous whenever he alighted from a step-ladder upon the toes of some gaping French mechanic, Lindbergh apologized and there was an exchange of courtesies which would have made the mechanics at Garden City, where there is no mixing of language, jump with surprise.

Damage done to Lindbergh's machine by souvenir hunters has been repaired. Mechanics have patched up the holes cut in the canvas by the crowds of curious that swarmed into the airfield Saturday night despite the efforts of police to keep them out.

A crowd got within the fenced enclosure containing the machine this morning and started cutting strips of canvas from the wings of the plane but they were quickly routed by the guards.

Lindbergh finished working on his plane at 11:30 and leaving the hangar vaulted a high fence, instead of seeking the gate, much to the enjoyment of the assembled admirers. He then proceeded to visit other hangars on the field and was in his glory inspecting commercial planes and watching mechanics at work on motors. Captain Richard White, naval attaché, suggested to Lindbergh that he get into his automobile and drive from hangar to hangar. "You get the car and ride along and pick me up later," answered Lindbergh, which White did.

The young flier admitted that he has found the constant receptions very tiring and he feared that today would be an even more tiring day.

The official invitation for Lindbergh to return home by a warship has not been received yet.

By FREDERIC WILLIAM WILE

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1927

WASHINGTON, May 25.—"National Citizens' Committee on Relations With Latin America," is the latest sprig on Washington's long overladen organizational tree. Senator George W. Norris, Progressive Republican of Nebraska, is the honorary president, and Mrs. J. Bord en Harrison is Democratic leader, and Senator David I. Walsh, Democrat, of Massachusetts, are among the honorary vice presidents. Senators LaFollette, of Wisconsin, and Frazier and Nye, of North Dakota,—all Progressive Republicans—are members of the general committee, which includes seventy-five or eighty nationally-known men and women of varying political complexions, among them a federal judge or two. The organization's manifesto lays down a heavy bar on the administration's Latin-American policy, which is branded imperialistic, un-American, insincere and other things. The announced purpose is to "force a reversal of this vicious policy and a

SOVIET EMBASSY TO QUIT LONDON

COMMONS EXPECTED TO SUPPORT BREACH CAUSED BY CABINET

Russia Says Policy Threatens Peace Of Europe

LONDON, May 25.—The Soviet embassy and Russian trade headquarters in Soviet House, which the government describes as a hotbed of communist propaganda directed against both England and America, were the scene of feverish activity today with officials winding up their affairs and preparing for immediate departure for Moscow.

The Soviet officials were prepared to depart as soon as the house of commons gave official confirmation to the cabinet's decision to break off with Moscow, severing both diplomatic and commercial relations.

From present indications the government is assured of a sweeping victory in the commons tomorrow when the breach with Russia comes to a vote.

The parliamentary labor party conferred today and decided not to move a vote of censure of the government in the house of commons tomorrow. The laborites, however, will ask for an inquiry by a house of commons committee before a vote is taken on the proposed rupture with Russia.

According to present plans the foreign office will send a note to Russia giving formal notification as soon as the commons confirms the break off in relations. This note, it is understood, will notify the Soviet commissary for foreign affairs that all trade agreements between England and the Soviet union are terminated and that diplomatic relations are ended between the two powers. The Soviets will be instructed that the diplomatic mission now in London is persona non grata which is equivalent to inviting the Moscow government to recall the members at once.

The labor party, led by former Premier Ramsay MacDonald will oppose in the house of commons a complete break with the Soviets. The laborites will contend that the government acted precipitately without giving the Moscow government an opportunity to answer all the allegations made against it and that the action taken will render Anglo-Russian trade impossible.

MOSCOW, May 25.—Soviet Russia will make no effort to avoid the coming rupture of diplomatic relations with Great Britain, the foreign office announced today.

News of the decision of the British cabinet to break with Russia has been received here with a surprising lack of excitement, which is evidenced by the editorials appearing in the official newspapers. "Great Britain has entered upon a policy which must bring the most terrible consequences to European peace," said Izvestia.

"We will await with complete calm further developments and events. Since Curzon ultimatum of four years ago there has been unceasing growth for the Soviets. The Soviet union has become a world power and if it has many enemies it also has many friends. "Dispatches from Paris reveal an English attempt to isolate us, but this attempt has been defeated since efforts to build an anti-Soviet Anglo-French entente did not meet with French sympathy. "By destroying business relations and insulting Russian public opinion, the conservative government has become its own grave digger," concluded Izvestia.

and E. F. Arras, Columbus, representing Ohio realtors, seeking to compel Governor Vic Donahey to appoint members of the state board authorized to examine and license real estate salesmen.

The lower courts upheld the action of the governor in refusing to make these appointments because the state legislature two years ago did not make appropriation of funds to pay salaries and expense of such a board.

Dismissal of these suits was at the request of McCrehen and Arras and follows the recent action of the present state legislature in making an appropriation for this board.

69 DAYS TO 33 HOURS! TRANS-OCEAN TIME CUT

It took Columbus sixty-nine days to cross the Atlantic in 1492; the first steamship crosses from Savannah, Ga., to Liverpool in twenty-seven days in 1819; the Mauretania set the steam record in 1924, crossing from New York to Cherbourg in five days, one hour and forty-nine minutes; the ZR-4, now the Los Angeles, sailed from Germany to America in eighty-one hours and seventeen minutes—but all records went by the boards when a determined young American, one Charles Lindbergh, flew by plane from New York to Paris in thirty-three hours and twenty-nine minutes!

MORE REFUGEES MENACE REHABILITATION

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 25.—Fresh disaster again impinged upon the work of rehabilitation for Secretary of Commerce Hoover today as reports of the new influx of flood refugees from Pointe Coupee and West Baton Rouge Parish in Louisiana cut short a tri-state reconstruction tour of the cabinet member's traveling flood relief headquarters.

Reports from Louisiana relief headquarters at Baton Rouge today said 10,000 refugees would be received at the state capital concentration camps within the next few days from the Pointe Coupee and West Baton Rouge area inundated from the McCrea crevasse which yesterday broke away from the defenders of Louisiana's last dry spot after a desperate sandbag battle of four days.

Arriving here early today, Secretary Hoover held a hurried conference with Governor John E.

Martineau and H. C. Couch, state reconstruction director, and then left by special train for Baton Rouge. He will stop six hours at Memphis tonight enroute.

While new territory in half a dozen sugar bowl parishes of central Louisiana went under the flood waters of the Atchafalaya basin today, parts of Arkansas and Mississippi emerged as the necessary reconstruction machinery was picked up at Memphis for movement to New Orleans.

of the lower Mississippi valley.

Memphis bankers have added $200,000 to the initial capital of the rehabilitation credit organization, $100,000 for Arkansas and $100,000 for Mississippi and Louisiana together. As the flood ellmax approached the southern edge of the stricken valley, the central Red Cross relief headquarters were picked up at Memphis for movement to New Orleans.

TRAINMEN KILLED WHEN TRAINS CRASH

Va., May 25.—Confusion of orders resulting in the meeting head-on of a passenger train on a coal-carrying freight train, was assigned today as the cause of a wreck on the Virginian Railroad, which cost the lives of two trainmen near here yesterday. "SLIM" IS HAPPY BOURGET FLYING FIELD, France, May 25.—Captain Charles Lindbergh got back to his old time form today when he began overhauling his airplane. Disdaining the use of a mechanic, Lindbergh began climbing over his machine with the aid of a step-ladder, inspecting the apparatus with minute care. The young American took off his hat and was soon in a characteristic pose with his hair blowing over his eyes. Several French mechanics who were at work on the field looked on with awe while the American tinkered around his plane. Lindbergh is a hero of heroes to the French and they do not attempt to disguise their admiration of him.

KELLY MURDER JURY REPORTED UNABLE TO ARRIVE AT VERDICT

LOS ANGELES, May 25.—Paul Kelly today pinned his hopes of escaping punishment for the death of Ray Raymond, the song and dance man, whom he is accused of having killed with his fists, on a mistrial.

Jurors in whose hands his fate rests were divided 10-2 when locked up for the night. They had deliberated more than ten hours without reaching a verdict. It was rumored the majority favored a verdict of manslaughter against the young film actor.

As four men and eight women prepared to resume their deliberations today, Superior Judge Charles S. Burnell indicated he would not discharge the jurors until they had exhausted every effort to agree.

SPENCER SHANK, PRINCIPAL OF CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL, RESIGNS

Superintendent Pendry And Board Express Regret At Action—High School Head Expects To Resume Studies

The resignation of Spencer Shank as principal of Central High School, submitted to school officials, Tuesday, was announced by City Superintendent H. C. Pendry, Wednesday. Principal Shank announced his decision at a meeting of teachers, Tuesday night.

He gave as his reason, his decision to enter school for three years' further educational training. The university he will enter has not been decided on, Mr. Shank says.

The resignation of Principal Shank was a surprise to school officials and teachers. "The resignation of Principal Shank was received with regret, by myself and the board of education," said Superintendent Pendry. "Mr. Shank has been highly efficient in his work here, has performed meritorious service and it will be exceedingly difficult to find someone of his type to fill the position." Mr. Shank has been principal of Central High School for a year. Before coming to Xenia he was assistant principal of Elyria High School one year and before that time was located at Chillicothe as head of the mathematics department of Chillicothe High School two years. He was well known in Xenia before taking the principalship of Central High School, having served as a teacher in the mathematics department of Central in 1921-22.

EX-CANTON SAFETY DIRECTOR ALLOWED TO SEE ILL MOTHER

Returns To Cell In Pen After Visit To Bed-side

COLUMBUS, O., May 25.—E. E. Curtis, former safety director of Canton, returned to his cell at Ohio Penitentiary early today after spending the past two days in Canton at the bedside of his mother who is ill.

Curtis, who was convicted of accepting a bribe, will be paroled on June 17, next, at the expiration of his minimum sentence, it was announced.

Warden P. E. Thomas, it was stated, permitted Curtis to go to Canton Monday evening after being informed that Governor Vic Donahey had received an urgent request from C. C. Curtis, former mayor of Canton, a brother of the former safety director, declaring that their mother was seriously ill and was desirous of seeing her son, E. E. Curtis.

The governor, also, received a certificate from the attending physician, it was announced, stating that the mother was very sick and wanted to see her son.

FOUR FARMERS HURT AS AUTOS COLLIDE

CELINA, O., May 25.—Four Indiana farmers were in Otis Hospital today, two probably fatally injured, as the result of a collision between the auto in which they were riding and a truck. A fifth escaped injury.

BONDSWOMAN HELD FOR ALLEGED FRAUD

CLEVELAND, May 25.—Arrest of a bondswoman was the latest angle today in the Ohio National Guard probe of alleged payroll padding. Mrs. Jennie Goldberg was taken into custody by a deputy U. S. Marshal, charged with perjury. It is alleged she gave bond for an O. N. G. sergeant, who was charged with fraud, saying at the time that she was not on the bond of any other person. According to the warrant, she was bondswoman for a federal prisoner under arrest at Toledo.

FLYER ABOARD SHIP TOWING HIS PLANE INTO AZORES PORT

Fog Caused "Flying Fascist" To Come Down In Ocean

LISBON, May 25.—Commander Francesco De Pinedo has not put into Fayal but has continued on the schooner Infantaesagres, with his seaplane in tow, to Horta, according to a dispatch received here today from Horta.

The dispatch stated that the schooner towing De Pinedo's plane, touched Fayal, but proceeded to Horta, after De Pinedo had shouted to those on shore that he needed no assistance.

The Portuguese gunboat, Beira, is proceeding to Horta with gasoline and will offer aid to De Pinedo.

LONDON, May 25.—The Italian steamship, Bulio intercepted a message from St. Michael, Azores, announcing the safe arrival of Commander Francesco De Pinedo at Fayal, according to a message to Lloyds marine agency today. The message stated that De Pinedo's machine had been safely towed into port.

ROME, May 25.—Commander Francesco De Pinedo today shared honors in Italy with Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh. News that De Pinedo was safe in the Azores was greeted throughout the entire kingdom with the wildest rejoicing.

Press dispatches that De Pinedo's plane, Santa Maria II, had been towed into Fayal harbor after a forced landing, were followed by an official announcement from the ministry of aviation that De Pinedo and his comrades were safe and well. The delay in getting the airman and his aids into Fayal was due to the fact that they were picked up by a sailing vessel.

Although reports here on De Pinedo's misfortune are meagre, it is gleaned from several brief messages received that the flier was forced down by fog, which made it impossible for him to be certain of his position and it is believed here that De Pinedo came down when he sighted a ship rather than run the risk of flying over the Azores and completely losing his course.

The fact that none of the "Santa Maria" was reported injured lends color to the theory that De Pinedo came down by plan and did not crash. Reports also indicate that the "Santa Maria" was not damaged and it is expected that if repairs can be effected in the Azores that the "Flying Fascist" will continue his flight to Rome.

Unkept Hands Spoil Entire Effect

Every woman should have soft, white, youthful hands to complete the picture of daintiness expected of her. While eating, dancing, playing cards, in fact, whatever you do, your hands are noticed as much as your complexion. You can't neglect them without spoiling the impression you make by being well groomed in every other detail. The easiest way to keep your hands soft, white and firm is to massage them with the dainty lotion you can make by simply squeezing the juice of two lemons into a bottle of Orchard White, which you can get from your nearest dealer. It clears and refines the skin, making toll-worn and stained hands look like a queen's. —Adv.

PENNSY COMPLETES INSTALLATION OF CROSSING SIGNALS

Installation of alternating danger signals by the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. at four city crossings, at a total cost said to approximate $4,000, was completed Tuesday and the safety devices put in operation immediately. The work has been in progress two months.

The signals have been installed at the Market, Main and Second Sts. and Cincinnati Ave. crossings. The company is removing crossing gates from the Second, Main and Market Sts. crossings and disposing of watchmen in a tower on Main St., who work in shifts and control a mechanism which operates drop gates for all three crossings. The watchmen at this point were James Kennedy and Patrick Whalen.

A crossing watchman will be stationed at the West St. crossing between 7 a. m. and 5 p. m., daily. Plans of the railroad also include the removal of the bell and arm signal at the West St. crossing.

The new signals are of the same design as the type in use at the Trebleton crossing. The devices are placed on both sides of the rails on the right side of approaching traffic from either direction. They begin functioning when a train hits an electric circuit at a distance from the crossing, and resemble, to a driver from a distance, a swinging lantern. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Co. does not contemplate guarding its crossings in Xenia in like fashion at this time, it is said.

The week is being sponsored by the city administration in order that the public may become better acquainted with the processes by which the city derives its water supply.

Visitors are particularly urged to inspect the plant either at 4 p. m. or at 7 p. m., the hours when the engineers wash the filter beds in order to witness this interesting process.

A number of out-of-town visitors made a tour of the plant Monday evening but inclement weather Monday and Tuesday afternoons and evenings, interfered with plans of many local residents to visit the plant.

Chief Engineer William Harrison will acquaint visitors with the technical phases of the plant's operation and Superintendent Zell also expects to devote part of his time to escorting visitors around the plant. Helpful information is also given on cards, which were printed and placed at convenient points.

While attending to matters of state one day, the king hears the strains of the Vesper chant, sung by monks. On looking up, the king beholds a being that seems to enthrall him and who proves to be an angel. This Divine messenger warns him that because of his wicked life he is to suffer and become a jester, and that he, the angel, will replace him on the throne.

After days in prison, buffeted by all, the erstwhile king still claims his own, but the courtiers only laugh at him and jostle him about. Meanwhile, the angel takes the realm and such a change takes place that even Malvollio, who secretly nursed treasonous thoughts, marvels at the spirit of the court, and at his own change of heart. When at length, Robert does penance he is restored to his former greatness, and spends the rest of his life doing for others.

Cast of characters, all of which come in for their share of congratulations, included: "Robert, King of Sicily," Philip Campbell; "Amelvollo," Robert Killen; "Malvollio," Lawrence Hibbert; "Hermite," Leo Cain; "Peasant," John Gekker; "Warden," William Neville; "Franciscan," Paul Combs; "Angel," Neil Donovan; "Jester," Alex. Mangano; "Legate," John McNamee.

"Hunters" include: John Ernst, Forest Gallagher, John Bennett and Charles Mangano, and the "pages" were Guido Pesavento, Fred Haller, Clarence Ratchford, and Joseph Fletcher.

The diplomas were presented by Fred Nelson, president of the Jamestown Board of Education. Frank Parquhar presented the class history. Andrew Gill gave an oration on "The Elevator to Success is Not Running, Take the Stairs." Cleo Hollingsworth on "Strive For The Summit." Walter Kohlhaugen, "The Progress of Science." Lorna Leach, vaudeviolin; Cyril Moorman, the class song; Virginia Reeves, salutatory; Kenneth Shane, class prophecy and Albert Snider gave a piano solo. Pauline Leveck presented flowers to the four teachers of the high school.

CEMENT MILL TAKES PART IN CONCERTED SAFETY CAMPAIGN

Co-operating with 150 other cement mills in the United States, Canada and Cuba, one of the most concerted safety drives ever inaugurated by the entire industry, will begin June 1 in the Osborn plant of the Southwestern Portland Cement Co., as part of the nationwide campaign.

Plans for the drive, to be known as the "June No-Accident Campaign" are being announced by W. T. Groner, plant superintendent.

Enrollment papers were signed Monday, the superintendent explained, in which the plant pledges its support in the national campaign.

Although the Osborn company has been exceedingly active in formation of plans to protect its workmen, arrangements are now being made for a local campaign expected to dwarf all past efforts and put the Osborn plant in the front rank with reference to industrial safety.

In order to carry the drive to every department and every individual worker in the cement mill, a safety committee composed of twenty foremen and executives has been appointed.

Beginning June 1, a green and white safety banner, presented by the Portland Cement Association, will fly from the flagstaff at the cement mill. It will stay up as long as the plant continues to operate without a time-lost accident. Every employee of the company will be on the alert to see that the flag is kept flying.

The safety campaign is sponsored by the Portland Cement Association and the National Safety Council.

The play was in four acts and was admirably given by a well-chosen cast headed by Philip Campbell, who lent reality to probably the most difficult role of all, that of "Robert, King of Sicily," and brother of Pope Urban, who is unimpaired of the spirit of his high position—that of a kind and generous ruler of his people—and a cruel tyrant who lives for self alone.

While attending to matters of state one day, the king hears the strains of the Vesper chant, sung by monks. On looking up, the king beholds a being that seems to enthrall him and who proves to be an angel. ## New Beauty Plus the utmost in tooth aids

Here are the best ways men have advised this for daily use on the teeth. Magnesia neutralizes acids. It is alkaline. The acids form, by food fermentation, between the teeth and in crevices. Magnesia goes where those acids form. And those acids are made harmless at its touch.

When you know the facts, you will never go to sleep without a pleasant taste in your mouth. After using it once you will never want a tooth paste which does less. Go prove this now.

Five in One
Its 15 ingredients combine in one tooth paste these five important helps:
Antacid Cleaners
Antiseptics
Polishers
Breath Deodorants

The basis is magnesia. Not ordinary magnesia, but Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in concentrated form. For fifty years

RIVERDALE CLUB OF DAYTON EXTENDING QUOIT LEAGUE LEAD

Riverdale Club of Dayton extended its lead in the Miami Valley Quoit League Monday night by overwhelming Tipp City 16 to 2 and is now far out in front in the race, with the Shrine Club in second place.

The schedule for Tuesday night, May 31, finds Xenia playing the Eastwood Club at Dayton, giving Xenians a chance to better their position in the league. Riverdale will play on the Shrine court and N. C. R. performs at Tipp City.

WON BY HIMSELF
NEW YORK, May 25.—Although 7,813 racing enthusiasts and handicappers in the United States picked Millwick to win the fourth race at Belmont yesterday, they were not a nickel richer today. Because of unfavorable track conditions every other horse in the race was scratched, and Millwick ran around all by himself.

It was the first one-horse race since Exterminator "won" a similar race at Saratoga several years ago.

JOHNNY RISKO WILL FIGHT DAYTON BOY

Joe Seykra, Dayton heavyweight, and Johnny Risko, Cleveland contender for heavyweight honors, who enjoys the distinction of never having been knocked out, have been matched for a twelve-round decision bout Monday night, June 6, in the first open-air show of the season at North Side Field, Dayton.

About two months ago, the boxing commission turned down this bout, considering Seykra incapable of battling a tough fellow like Risko, but Joe's sensational string of victories in the past sixty days over such fighters as Sully Montgomery, Rosco Rojas, Mike Wallace, Bob Fitzsimmons and a half dozen or more lesser lights, has caused a change of heart and the bout has been sanctioned.

It is understood that Risko is getting the largest guarantee ever given a fighter to appear in Dayton.

SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"The doctrine of evolution makes the universe intelligible. It unlocks the doors of many things which before were mysterious. In its light we study all branches of knowledge with a new understanding."—Rev. Frank Pratt, D. D.

"Organized religion undoubtedly has a great many things to answer for. It has been guilty of persecution and of obscurantism. But if organized religion has much to answer for, so also have organized government and organized business."—Professor David S. Muzzey.

"Necessity says, 'you must get an education,' and the child says, 'Isn't school glorious?' Necessity says, 'you must help your mother with the housework,' and the child says, 'I love housework!' Necessity says, 'you make your money at this kind of toil,' and the man says, 'that is a most interesting kind of toil, let me at it!'"—Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick.

"People who look for compensations equivalent to their sacrifices and expect to be paid for virtue in gifts or applause may be disappointed, but real integrity cannot be disappointed."—Rev. Dr. Minot Simons.

"What you give in health is gold. What you give in sickness is silver. What you give after death is lead."—Nathan Straus.

TRY FOR RECORD

DETROIT, May 25.—An attempt to break the record of fifty-one hours continuous flying set recently by Bert Acosta and Clarence Chamberlin will be made here early next month by Duke Lockwood, it was announced today.

JUST A HARMLESS JOKE

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—William B. Skillman tried to run for assemblyman. Feeling he was not at all likely to be elected, he telegraphed newspapers under an assumed name charging that he was living with a woman not his wife. The telegrams were traced and he was brought to account, whereupon he neatly explained that it was both true and harmless, since he is living with his mother.

KELLY IMPROVES

NEW YORK, May 25.—George Kelly of the Cincinnati Reds, who was operated on for acute appendicitis here yesterday, was reported doing nicely today. He will not be able to return to the game for at least a month.

HOW TO PLAY BASEBALL
Keep On Top Of The Ball
AS TOLD BY STARS OF THE GAME

By "BABE" PINELLI
Third Baseman, Cincinnati Reds

To play third base successfully the first thing to learn is to get in front of every ball possible. By doing so, a ball that takes a bad hop gives you a possible play. On the other hand, when played to either side, nine times out of ten the ball is not fielded or judged perfectly and the play is lost. The batter should be studied, noticing to which field he hits more often. If the batter is a dead left field hitter, play closer to the line; if he hits mostly to right, move nearer the shortstop. Always be alert for bunts and until there are two out.

What a treat it was to open the tidy red tin and free that wonderful Prince Albert fragrance! To a pipe-hungry man, no other aroma ever came within a mile of that. I could hardly wait to tumble a load into the bowl of my jimmy-pipe and light up. And then... that marvelous taste!

speed for a force play at second. Study the different hitters who are fast. Look for a bunt then field accordingly. If a hitter is slow of foot and seldom bunts, play him a few feet back of third base. This enables you to cover more territory. Above all things have lots of pep and always bear in mind how many outs there are during the game.

TOO PROUD TO DIE

80. SAN FRANCISCO—Dr. Frank Price, of Nanking Theological seminary, a refugee here, escaped death at the hands of the Chinese only because of his refusal to kneel. The Chinese, with a characteristic love of ceremony, refused to execute him unless he would get down on his knees with his head on the ground, the proper position for an execution. For eight hours he was a prisoner, and seven times he refused to kneel, to the disappointment of his hosts. Finally he escaped with the aid of a Chinese lieutenant, leaving his captors highly indignant over his aversity.

return to the ways of good neighborhood. It is to be accomplished "by getting to the people the fact that dollar diplomacy is destroying our good name abroad and will destroy everything that depends upon a good name."

Grew Appointment Breaks Custom

The appointment of Joseph C. Grew, undersecretary of state, as American ambassador to Turkey, carries out a new state department tradition, while breaking with an old one. The new departure exemplified by Grew's ambassadorship is the systematic promotion of meritorious "career" diplomats in our foreign service. The tradition abandoned is the one that grew up during the early days of the present century, whereby presidents habitually appointed eminent American Jews to the Constantinople embassy. Mr. Roosevelt inaugurated the custom in 1909 when he named his former secretary of commerce, the late Oscar S. Straus, as our envoy to Turkey. In 1913 President Wilson appointed Henry Morgenthau to that post, and in 1915, when Morgenthau resigned, Mr. Wilson made Abraham I. Elkus, ambassador on the Golden Horn. The theory of Jewish diplomats in Turkey seemed to spring from the belief that the Ottoman empire, being a Mohammedan country, preferred non-Christian envoys. President Harding appointed a Jewish rabbi from Columbus, O., Dr. Joseph S. Kornfeld, as minister to Moslem Persia in 1921.

Army Leaders Will Gather

Washington will be full of United States major generals on May 20, and for several days to come. The war department has summoned all of the commanders of our nine army corps areas and of our three or four divisional organizations for a service pow-wow, and confer under the direction of Major General Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff. It's a long time since the country's principal army leaders have been brought together for such a council of peace. Problems of general military welfare and national defense will occupy their time and thought.

Mrs. Willebrandt Breaks Precedent

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, ranking assistant attorney general of the United States, is to establish a precedent in Dixie on May 30. She will on that day deliver the commencement address at the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa, one of the oldest and biggest of southern colleges. It will be the first time that a woman ever held forth in Alabama on such an occasion. A few days after "Portia" speaks in Tuscaloosa, she is to take part in the graduating exercises of Dickinson college, at Carlisle, Pa., where Mrs. Willebrandt will add another LL.D. to the growing string of honorary doctorates of laws that she boasts. Law enforcement is her usual and favorite theme on the speaking platform away from Washington.

Borah-Butler Debate Published

The Borah-Butler prohibition debate before the Roosevelt club of Boston, on April 8, has just been published in pamphlet form, under the editorship of Robert M. Washburn, the club's indefatigable president. The verbatim newspaper accounts of the debate, which were printed all over the country, did not carry Washburn's witty opening remarks as chairman of the combat. To guard against the danger that their cultured audience might not give Borah and Butler an appropriate "hand", Washburn wound up his introduction as follows:

"Now, just one word more. Give these two men a great, big, warm reception. If you happen to feel like applauding, forget that you are Bostonese, if you can, and attempt not to smother it. Remember, if you can, that while we ourselves are in a way used to Boston, that they are not."

The Rovin' Ritzies

By Flo Frederick

Where the Birds Choose to Nest

Marty had put the finishing touches on his blue jay bungalow and his Ritzie comrades were standing about the carpenter shop admiring it.

"I wish I could make a bird house like that," said Rag, gazing enviously at the white-painted bungalow.

"Why, anyone can build a bird house," said Marty. "Some birds like a house that is made out of a couple of sticks rather than one like this."

"I think I'll try to make one," Rag had always wanted a bird house of his own and it seemed rather cowardly not to give it a try.

"If you do, I'll try my hand at one too," joined in Tag. He refused to be outdone by his twin brother.

"Let's have a contest," suggested Patsy. "Betty Ann and I can make bird houses if the twins can. What shall we have as a prize for the best bird house?"

"I'll build a bird bath for the one who builds the best house," offered Marty. "and the contest will close a week from today," argued Tag.

"That's not time enough," argued Tag.

"Oh, yes, it is," said Marty, firmly.

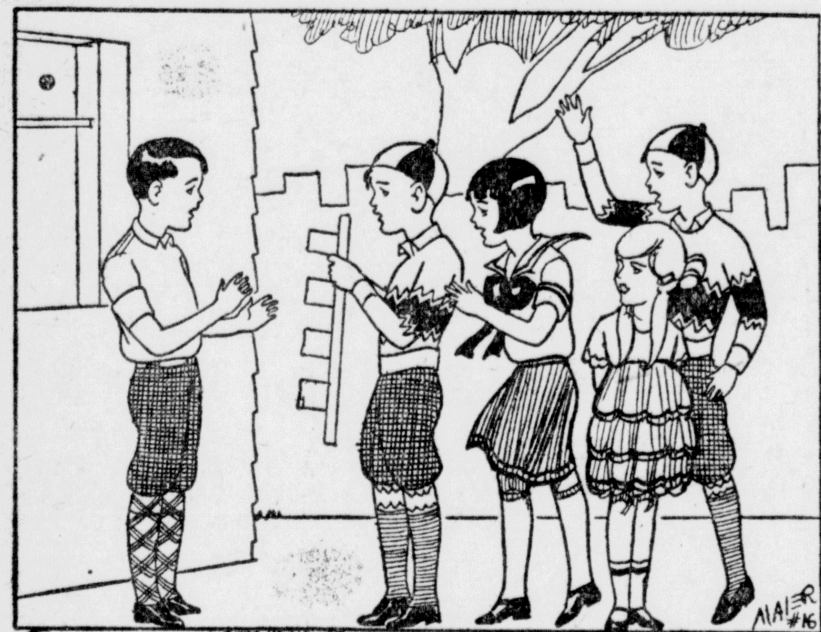

faces at the meeting he had called. "Well, Rag," said Marty, "you were the first to want to build a bird house. What have you got to say for yourself?"

Rag disappeared and returned a minute later holding a flat board with four tin-can bird houses nailed in place. The top of each can had been bent back and nailed to the board holding the can tightly against it. A little doorway had been cut (with a can opener) in the other end of each can and the piece of tin bent back to form a porch for the house.

"That's mighty clever," said Marty. "Try to beat that, Betty Ann." Betty Ann produced a fruit basket bird house that had been nailed to a board. A hole in the side with a stick for a perch led the way to this spacious bird home. Though it was a delicate house and needed to be placed in a sheltered place, Betty Ann had greatly surprised Marty with her skill.

Patsy had made still another very different house, or rather a whole group of wren houses. She had enlarged the holes in the bottoms of flower pots and placed them between two boards that had been cut out to hold the pots firmly in place.

Marty now understood why Patsy had asked so many questions about

ly. "It doesn't take long when you get at it."

This started the famous Ritzie bird contest. The following week the Ritzies kept pretty much to themselves, but mysterious things happened all along.

Rag was seen searching through the ash cans. Patsy rummaged through the basement, and one afternoon, after asking Marty innumerable questions about how to cut half circles in a piece of wood, had asked to be left alone in the little carpenter shop.

Tag, who had never been known to stay home, spent every afternoon in his own yard. Betty Ann dashed into the carpenter shop one day to borrow "the thing you bore holes with" and then didn't have a minute's time to stay and visit.

In spite of all these unusual happenings, Marty couldn't see that the contest was making much progress. No one had asked to borrow a saw or use any of his lumber. He decided to himself that his fellow club members weren't trying to make their houses and were staying away from the shop to avoid being questioned.

He did not look very well pleased on the closing day of the contest, though the other Ritzie club members arrived with beaming half-circles and how to make them. When it came Tag's turn to show his house, he led them over to his yard, where he proudly displayed a built-in house in the trunk of an old tree. He had cleaned out a hollow in the tree, fastened strips around the edge, and put on a hinge door with a little round opening for a door. A twig made the perch where the bird could sit and sun itself.

"You folks are too clever," said Marty, quite overcome with this wealth of new ideas in bird houses. "I am not a fit judge at all. Suppose we leave it up to the birds. Put up your houses, and the first one to have a bird take possession will win the bird bath that I am making."

This was certainly turning out to be a great contest—having the birds as judges! How eagerly the Ritzies watched for their bird tenants.

What the birds decide about the houses will be told in another story.

The Ritzies' bird houses are very practical ones and easy to make. If you aren't a carpenter like Marty, try your luck with tin cans, flower pots or fruit baskets like the rest of the Ritzies. If there is a hollow in one of your trees, be sure to make a tree nest like Tag's.

KIWANIS ENJOY MUSICAL PROGRAM

A varied program was presented for the entertainment of the Xenia Kiwanis Club, Tuesday evening at the Elks' Club. The headliner on program was "Harmonica Mike," well known radio entertainer, who is appearing at the Bijou Theater, this week. His program of harmonica numbers was enthusiastically received by the club.

The musical program was completed by the Misses Mary and Eleanor McDonnell, pianist and vocalist, who are always appreciated by local audiences.

Charles A. Bone and J. Thorb Charters took part in a blackface sketch, which provided much merriment. The program was completed with a short talk by Prof. G. J. Graham, a guest at the meeting. Dinner was served by Jacob Kany preceding the program.

FESS EXPLAINS HIS SUPPORT OF HAYNES

"The prohibition law would be more effectively enforced with a strong sentiment supporting, than if there was a suspicion that those in charge had been supported by an element that had been opposed to prohibition, and it was on this basis that I recommended the appointment of Roy Haynes," declared United States Senator S. D. Fess on his return to his home in Yellow Springs Tuesday.

He delivered a commencement address at Flint, Mich., Monday night and spoke at a Mt. Orab commencement Tuesday night. Wednesday night he will speak at North Baltimore and from there will go to Pittsburgh, where he will address the New Kensington commencement.

JAMESTOWN

MEMORIAL DAY

The membership of Strong Post, G. A. R., has become depleted by death, from a strong organization to a mere remnant. The members in Jamestown are: Charles Watson, C. N. Smith, George Ballard, Frank Soddors, I. T. Cummings transferred his membership to Lewis Post, Xenia, when he moved there, so the patriotic citizens and other organizations will aid in conducting the services on Monday afternoon, May 30, which the veterans will appreciate very much.

On Sunday morning, May 29, the Rev. Hubert S. Snyder, minister of the Church of Christ, will give the memorial sermon, at the church. The Rev. L. L. Gray, minister of the United Presbyterian Church, will give an address at the cemetery, after the flowers have been strewn on the graves of about 160 deceased soldiers and sailors, including six confederate graves. The school children are requested to take flowers to the Ed. Irwin room on N. Limestone St., on Monday morning.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:

The entrance of America into the World War finds Philip Wynne Tracy IV suffering from the collapse of his first passionate love affair. Before this, he and Natalie Jones, who is the daughter of the Tracy millman, had had a childish engagement which, however, had been objected to by both Mrs. Tracy and Mr. Jones.

Philip's mother plans to interest her son in other girls and decides to give him a party. She tells him of the impending visit of her friend, Lynn Hilliard, and unconsciously arouses his interest in the woman.

On a midnight ride, Lynn confesses her love to Philip. The whole affair sinks into nothingness, however, because war is declared. Rod and Philip are the first to enlist.

Lynn writes a cruel letter to Philip and leaves without seeing either him or his mother. Natalie accuses Mrs. Tracy of sending her boy to war to save him from her, and Mrs. Tracy replies, "I am sending him to war, my dear, to save him from you."

In the eye of leaving for the barracks, Rod understands from something Phil says that the affair between himself and Lynn is broken off.

Here the story further unfolds—

CHAPTER XIV

AT THE LAST MOMENT

THE two boys, Rodney and Philip, learned they were to leave for the detention camp the next evening, and that was all.

As Phil said, no one seemed to know just where they were going or what they were to do, but it looked as though they were on their way.

Rod decided to go to the office of his guardian and put his affairs in shape, consequently Phil, having forgotten all about making his will, left him at the door of the recruiting station and hurried out, hoping he would be able to see his mother before she heard he was to leave the next day.

He thought it would be kinder to tell her himself, but he was too late. He found his mother alone in a state of collapse. She had heard from the grocer's boy that the first train load of men were to be sent to barracks immediately, and for the first time she had really realized that Phil was going to war.

As in a terrible dream, at his request, she went back with him to the station where she signed the formal consent to his enlisting, with hardly a sign that she knew what she was doing, except to mechanically write her name on the line which was indicated.

Hoping to interest her in something besides her grief, he asked his mother on the way back to the house what he should take with him to France.

At that time all the boys who were leaving were sure they would be sent overseas immediately.

To Mrs. Tracy this was a godsend. She spent all the late afternoon and the morning of the next day shopping.

If she could have her way, Phil would have been weighted down with silk underwear, pajamas and every possible luxury a man might think he needed who was traveling leisurely about the world for pleasure.

Phil, however, with a Spartan intuition of what a doughboy would not need, weeded out of his mother's purchases a few necessary belongings, packed them in a small suitcase and soon had everything ready to leave at the appointed time.

He made the excuse of military business to keep away from his home as much as possible.

Much to his mother's surprise, he did not take out his roadster, and during the afternoon she learned he had made a deal with the company from which it was purchased whereby it was to be left at the rooms for resale.

None of the recruits could find out from which station they were leaving, but Rod had heard a rumor and thought he knew on what road they were going, and he telephoned Natalie that if he could not get over to see her she must meet him at the train.

She had been trying frantically to get hold of Rod ever since she had returned from Mrs. Tracy's the morning before, for although she had made Rod promise he would telephone her just as soon as he knew what was going to happen she was too nervous and upset to wait for him to call her.

Now she exacted from him another promise. "I am coming down to see you off tonight," she said; "keep watch for me. Don't let me lose you in the crowd."

Rod was rather ashamed of himself, but he felt a little comforted when he realized she had not asked anything about Phil. It was just as well for his peace of mind that he did not know the moment he hung up the receiver that Natalie had rung up Mrs. Tracy and found that Phil was not at home and that he had insisted his mother should not go to see him off.

The day that the men were leaving came at last. All through the night the hours had seemed to crawl and during the morning Philip tried valiantly, if not successfully, to act as if nothing out of the ordinary was happening.

"Come, mother, it's time to go."

When he seated his mother in her accustomed place at the dinner which he knew would be his last at home for some time he had nearly calmed his nerves to where he was able to speak, if not think, quite coherently.

"I don't feel right, Philip," his mother said, "not going to the train with you."

"It will be much better for you. Mother dear, to be there when I come back," he said as he arose from the table where neither Mrs. Tracy nor himself had eaten anything and went around behind her chair that she might not see his face. "You know it's much pleasanter to welcome people than to bid them good-by."

Mrs. Tracy burst into tears. "Hold up your head, Mom, and say good-by to me now. You know if Dad were alive he would say, 'Another Tracy is following the flag.'"

Anne Tracy looked at her boy wildly. "Was it possible," she asked herself, "that she was sending Philip away from her to die?"

SHE rose unsteadily and threw out her hands as though to ward off something that was swiftly shutting down upon her and stifling her.

"What did your country mean to her?" she inquired hysterically of her patriotism that had been telling her all day through the mouth of her friends that she should be very proud of Philip Wynne Tracy IV.

To these friends she had been able to keep up her courage, but now instead of holding up her head she bent it still further over the table as she was shaken with sobs.

Suddenly she felt herself pulled up and clasped in Philip's arms. She heard his voice saying rather shakily, "Come, Mother, it's time to go."

Tighter she clung around his neck. "I can't do it—I can't do it," she whispered. "You'll never come back to me, Philip."

"Don't cry so, Mother. Why I may never get over this war will probably be finished before we get there. Be brave. Don't break my heart, for I must leave you. You know I love you."

Tenderly he tried to lift her mouth to his, but found to his terror that he was pressing to him a slumping body and that the arms which had been tightly clasped about his neck had fallen to his side.

His mother had fainted. Slowly he carried her to the settee. Just through the door of the dining room, and placing a cushion under her head, he called, "Nannie!"

"She is dead, Mr. Philip. She's dead. I knew your going would kill her," shrieked the maid who came quickly to help him.

"No, she has only fainted, Nannie. I'll take care of her while you call a doctor and a nurse."

Philip dropped on his knees before the settee and chafed his mother's limp hand. In a few moments her sad eyes looked into his.

"YOU see, I'm not brave, Son," she said, trying to smile. "I cannot give you up willingly—I'm not as strong as I thought I was—perhaps there is yet time. We could go down and I could tell them I did not know what I was doing—"

Mrs. Tracy started up wildly.

Gently Philip pushed his mother back upon the settee. "It is too late now, Mother darling. I should be to

LINDBERGH HAPPY EXAMINING PLANE

YOUTH SCORNS HELP FROM MECHANICS AS INSPECTS HIS SHIP

Finds Reception In His Honor More Tiring Than Trip

LE BOURGET, May 25.—Captain Charles A. Lindbergh was back in his own sphere today, completely happy as he tinkered with wrenches and drills, working as an ordinary mechanic upon his plane, which has been standing in a hangar here since Saturday when Lindbergh arrived on his epochal flight from New York.

The grinning youth seemed hardly able to restrain himself when he arrived at the hangars this morning to work on his machine. He spurned offers from mechanics of overalls and jumpers and unkindly of his new clothes started immediately climbing over the plane, examining damage done by souvenir hunters and making arrangements for materials and tools with which to repair the plane.

The young flier made no effort to hide his satisfaction at being back in the world of motors and struts and gasoline and oil.

"I wish I could stay here all day and I wish I could fly a little," Lindbergh told the International News Service correspondent, as he started to work.

"My only chance of being alone is to go up in a flight, but I have too many engagements commencing at noon."

Then Lindbergh outlined his engagements for the day, which include a reception by the Chamber of Deputies, and there was no doubt left that he has found his life of receptions and honors during the past three days more tiring and more exacting than the thirty-three hours he spent on his solo flight across the Atlantic.

As Lindbergh, dragging a stepladder with him to enable him to reach parts of the plane, worked busily upon the giant machine, French mechanics gathered and stood in their grimy overalls admiring the hero of the hour and remarking upon his intimate knowledge with the mechanical workings of his machine.

Several French mechanics had been assigned to aid Lindbergh, but their admiration exceeded their energy and for the most part they stood by as awe inspired onlookers while the American boy adjusted and tinkered, apparently tickled to death to do all the work himself.

Marshal Foch's aide, Captain Hospital, acted as interpreter to Lindbergh, but not with a great deal of success. Lindbergh knew only the English mechanical phrases and Captain Hospital knew only the French phrases, and there was a good deal of laughing, expostulation and sign language going on between Lindbergh and the French mechanics as the American attempted to indicate his wants.

With good humor and apparent willingness to undergo any handicaps as long as he could remain with his machine, Lindbergh stumbled over the little groups that had gathered about in a desire to help him, but who actually impeded his work. Always courteous whenever he alighted from a stepladder upon the toes of some gaping French mechanic, Lindbergh apologized and there was an exchange of courtesies which would have made the mechanics at Garden City, where there is no mixing of language, gasp with surprise.

Damage done to Lindbergh's machine by souvenir hunters has been repaired. Mechanics have patched up the holes cut in the canvas by the crowds of curious that swarmed into the airfield Saturday night despite the efforts of police to keep them out.

Among the striking shifts in the Prohibition Enforcement Bureau, is the appointment of Dr. J. M. Doran, above, chief chemist of the bureau, to the position of prohibition commissioner, ousting Roy Haynes, the Anti-Saloon League choice for the post.

WILE SAYS:

Latest "Sprig" "Career" Man Army Meeting Washington Notes

By FREDERIC WILLIAM WILE

Exclusive Dispatch. Copyright 1927

WASHINGTON, May 25.—"National Citizens' Committee on Relations With Latin America," is the latest sprig on Washington's long overgrown organization tree. Senator George W. Norris, Progressive Republican of Nebraska, is the honorary president, and Mrs. J. Bordman Harriman, Democratic leader, and Senator David I. Walsh, Democrat, of Massachusetts, are among the honorary vice presidents. Senators LaFollette, of Wisconsin, and Frazier and Nye, of North Dakota, all Progressive Republicans, are members of the general committee, which includes seventy-five or eighty nationally-known men and women of varying political complexions, among them a federal judge or two. The organization's manifesto lays down a heavy barrage upon the administration's Latin-American policy, which is branded imperialistic, un-American, insincere and other things. The announced purpose is to "force a reversal of this vicious policy and a

Entering the office supposedly as patients, the youths drew guns, while the girl acted as lookout.

SOVIET EMBASSY TO QUIT LONDON

COMMONS EXPECTED TO SUPPORT BREACH CAUSED BY CABINET

Russia Says Policy Threatens Peace Of Europe

LONDON, May 25.—The Soviet embassy and Russian trade headquarters in Soviet House, which the government describes as a hotbed of communist propaganda directed against both England and America, were the scene of feverish activity today with officials winding up their affairs and preparing for immediate departure for Moscow.

The Soviet officials were prepared to depart as soon as the house of commons gave official confirmation to the cabinet's decision to break off with Moscow, severing both diplomatic and commercial relations.

From present indications the government is assured of a sweeping victory in the commons tomorrow when the breach with Russia comes to a vote.

The parliamentary labor party conferred today and decided not to move a vote of censure of the government in the house of commons tomorrow. The laborites, however, will ask for an inquiry by a house of commons committee before a vote is taken on the proposed rupture with Russia.

According to present plans the foreign office will send a note to Russia giving formal notification as soon as the commons confirms the break off in relations.

This note, it is understood, will notify the Soviet commissary for foreign affairs that all trade agreements between England and the Soviet union are terminated and that diplomatic relations are ended between the two powers. The Soviets will be instructed that the diplomatic mission now in London is persona non grata which is equivalent to inviting the Moscow government to recall the members at once.

The labor party, led by former Premier Ramsay MacDonald will oppose in the house of commons a complete break with the Soviets. The laborites will contend that the government acted precipitately without giving the Moscow government an opportunity to answer the allegations made against it and that the action taken will render Anglo-Russian trade impossible.

MOSCOW, May 25.—Soviet Russia will make no effort to avoid the coming rupture of diplomatic relations with Great Britain, the foreign office announced today.

News of the decision of the British cabinet to break with Russia has been received here with a surprising lack of excitement, which is evidenced by the editorials appearing in the official newspapers.

"Great Britain has entered upon a policy which must bring the most terrible consequences to European peace," said Izvestia.

"We will await with complete calm further developments and events. Since Curzon ultimatum of four years ago there has been unceasing growth for the Soviets. The Soviet union has become a world power and if it has many enemies it also has many friends."

"Dispatches from Paris reveal an English attempt to isolate us, but this attempt has been defeated since efforts to build an anti-Soviet Anglo-French entente did not meet with French sympathy."

"By destroying business relations and insulting Russian public opinion, the conservative government has become its own grave digger," concluded Izvestia.

69 DAYS TO 33 HOURS! TRANS-OCEAN TIME CUT

It took Columbus sixty-nine days to cross the Atlantic in 1492; the first steamship crosses from Savannah, Ga., to Liverpool in twenty-seven days in 1819; the Mauretania set the steam record in 1924, crossing from New York to Cherbourg in five days, one hour and forty-nine minutes; the ZR-4, now the Los Angeles, sailed from Germany to America in eighty-one hours and seventeen minutes—but all records went by the boards when a determined young American, one Charles Lindbergh, flew by plane from New York to Paris in thirty-three hours and twenty-nine minutes!

MORE REFUGEES MENACE REHABILITATION

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 25.—Fresh disaster again impinged upon the work of rehabilitation today as reports of the new influx of flood refugees from Pointe Coupee and West Baton Rouge Parish in Louisiana cut short a tri-state reconstruction tour of the cabinet member's traveling flood relief headquarters.

Reports from Louisiana relief headquarters at Baton Rouge today said 10,000 refugees would be received at the state capital concentration camps within the next few days from the Pointe Coupee and West Baton Rouge area inundated from the McCrea crevasse which yesterday broke away from the defenders of Louisiana's last dry spot after a desperate sandbag battle of four days.

Arriving here early today, Secretary Hoover held a hurried conference with Governor John E.

Martineau and H. C. Couch, state reconstruction director, and then left by special train for Baton Rouge. He will stop six hours at Memphis tonight enroute.

While new territory in half a dozen sugar bowl parishes of central Louisiana went under the flood waters of the Atchafalaya basin today, parts of Arkansas and Mississippi emerged far enough to give the reconstruction machinery a foothold in the northern edge of the lower Mississippi valley. Memphis bankers have added $200,000 to the initial capital of the rehabilitation credit organization, $100,000 for Arkansas and $100,000 for Mississippi and Louisiana together. As the flood climax approached the southern edge of the stricken valley, the central Red Cross relief headquarters were picked up at Memphis for movement to New Orleans.

ROME, May 25.—Commander Francesco De Pinedo today shared honors in Italy with Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh. News that De Pinedo was safe in the Azores was greeted throughout the entire kingdom with the wildest rejoicing.

Press dispatches that De Pinedo's plane, Santa Maria II, had been towed into Fayal harbor after a forced landing, were followed by an official announcement from the ministry of aviation that De Pinedo and his comrades were safe and well. The delay in getting the airman and his aids into the harbor was due to the fact that they were picked up by a sailing vessel.

Although reports here on De Pinedo's misfortune are meagre, it is gleaned from several brief messages received that the flier was forced down by fog, which made it impossible for him to be certain of his position and it is believed here that De Pinedo came down when he sighted a ship rather than run the risk of flying over the Azores and completely losing his course.

The fact that none of the "Santa Maria" was reported injured lends color to the theory that De Pinedo came down by plan and did not crash.

Reports also indicate that the "Santa Maria" was not damaged and it is expected that if repairs can be effected in the Azores that the "Flying Fascist" will continue his flight to Rome.

AMERICANS TO MEET ROYALTY AT SECOND COURT OF ST. JAMES

Small Group Bows Before English King And Queen

LONDON, May 25.—Eight American women were waiting somewhat breathlessly today to make their bows before royalty tonight at the second of the season's courts, to be held tonight by King George and Queen Mary.

This group, small when compared to the lists of American women presented at some courts of previous years, follows a group of sixteen American women who were presented at the first court of the season, last night.

Tonight's candidates for the highest honor aspired to by American society women, include: Miss Grace Cody of New York City; Miss Pauline Day of New York City; Miss Josephine Flood of New York City; Mrs. Lowell Pinkerton, of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Joseph Sheedy of Randolph, Vt.; Mrs. Myron Taylor, of New York City; Mrs. George Webb, of Indianapolis, Ind.; and Miss Eleanor Wendell, of Summit, N. J.

TRAINMEN KILLED WHEN TRAINS CRASH

PRINCETON, W. Va., May 25.—Confusion of orders resulting in the meeting head-on of a passenger train and a coal-carrying freight train, was assigned today as the cause of a wreck on the Virginian Railroad, which cost the lives of two trainmen near here yesterday. E. G. Aldrich, engineer, of Roanoke, and F. M. O'Neal, of Pax, W. Va., fireman, were killed. Passengers were shaken up but uninjured.

YOUTH DROWNS

CLEVELAND, May 25.—The first swimming fatality of the season in Greater Cleveland, occurred here when Anthony Moon, 13, was caught by a treacherous undertow in Euclid Creek, late yesterday and drowned. The boy's stepfather and two other men made desperate attempts to save him, without success.

"SLIM" IS HAPPY
BOURGET FLYING FIELD, France, May 25, Captain Charles Lindbergh got back to his old time form today when he began overhauling his airplane. Disdaining the use of a mechanic, Lindbergh began climbing over his machine with the aid of a stepladder, inspecting the apparatus with minute care. The young American took off his hat and was soon in a characteristic pose with his hair blowing over his eyes. Several French mechanics who were at work on the field looked on with awe while the American tinkered around his plane. Lindbergh is a hero of heroes to the French and they do not attempt to disguise their admiration of him.

KELLY MURDER JURY REPORTED UNABLE TO ARRIVE AT VERDICT

LOS ANGELES, May 25.—Paul Kelly today pinned his hopes of escaping punishment for the death of Ray Raymond, the song and dance man, whom he is accused of having killed with his fists, on a mistrial.

Jurors in whose hands his fate rests were divided 10-2 when locked up for the night. They had deliberated more than ten hours without reaching a verdict. It was rumored the majority favored a verdict of manslaughter against the young film actor.

As four men and eight women prepared to resume their deliberations today, Superior Judge Charles S. Bunnell indicated he would not discharge the jurors until they had exhausted every effort to agree.

EX-CANTON SAFETY DIRECTOR ALLOWED TO SEE ILL MOTHER

Returns To Cell In Pen After Visit To Bedside

COLUMBUS, O., May 25.—E. E. Curtis, former safety director of Canton, returned to his cell at Ohio Penitentiary early today after spending the past two days in Canton at the bedside of his mother who is ill.

Curtis, who was convicted of accepting a bribe, will be paroled on June 17, next, at the expiration of his minimum sentence, it was announced.

Warden P. E. Thomas, it was stated, permitted Curtis to go to Canton Monday evening after being informed that Governor Vic Donahey had received an urgent request from C. C. Curtis, former mayor of Canton, a brother of the former safety director, declaring that their mother was seriously ill and was desirous of seeing her son, E. E. Curtis.

The governor, also, received a certificate from the attending physician, it was announced, stating that the mother was very sick and wanted to see her son.

FOUR FARMERS HURT AS AUTOS COLLIDE

CELINA, O., May 25.—Four Indiana farmers were in Otis Hospital today, two probably fatally injured, as the result of a collision between the auto in which they were riding and a truck. A fifth escaped injury.

The five were on their way to the grand reservoir to fish, having driven from near Portland, Ind. Roy Lee, with a fractured skull, and Sam Thomas, with spine injuries and torn muscles, were not expected to live. George Zuber suffered torn ligaments and a broken bone in his left shoulder and R. B. Thomas sustained severe injuries to his hip. The truck driver was not hurt.

BONDSWOMAN HELD FOR ALLEGED FRAUD

CLEVELAND, May 25.—Arrest of a bondswoman was the latest angle today in the Ohio National Guard probe of alleged payroll padding. Mrs. Jennie Goldberg was taken into custody by a deputy U. S. Marshal, charged with perjury.

It is alleged she gave bond for an O. N. G. sergeant, who was charged with fraud, saying at the time that she was not on the bond of any other person. According to the warrant, she was bondswoman for a federal prisoner under arrest at Toledo.

FLYER ABOARD SHIP TOWING HIS PLANE INTO AZORES PORT

Fog Caused "Flying Fascist" To Come Down In Ocean

LISBON, May 25.—Commander Francesco De Pinedo has not put into Fayal but has continued on the schooner Infantaesagres, with his seaplane in tow, to Horta, according to a dispatch received here today from Horta.

The dispatch stated that the schooner towing De Pinedo's plane, touched Fayal, after De Pinedo had shouted to those on shore that he needed no assistance.

The Portuguese gunboat, Beira, is proceeding to Horta with gasoline and will offer aid to De Pinedo.

LONDON, May 25.—The Italian steamship, Dullio intercepted a message from St. Michael, Azores, announcing the safe arrival of Commander Francesco De Pinedo at Fayal, according to a message to Lloyds marine agency today. The message stated that De Pinedo's machine had been safely towed into port.

ROME, May 25.—Commander Francesco De Pinedo today shared honors in Italy with Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh. News that De Pinedo was safe in the Azores was greeted throughout the entire kingdom with the wildest rejoicing.

Press dispatches that De Pinedo's plane, Santa Maria II, had been towed into Fayal harbor after a forced landing, were followed by an official announcement from the ministry of aviation that De Pinedo and his comrades were safe and well. The delay in getting the airman and his aids into the harbor was due to the fact that they were picked up by a sailing vessel.

Although reports here on De Pinedo's misfortune are meagre, it is gleaned from several brief messages received that the flier was forced down by fog, which made it impossible for him to be certain of his position and it is believed here that De Pinedo came down when he sighted a ship rather than run the risk of flying over the Azores and completely losing his course.

The fact that none of the "Santa Maria" was reported injured lends color to the theory that De Pinedo came down by plan and did not crash.

Reports also indicate that the "Santa Maria" was not damaged and it is expected that if repairs can be effected in the Azores that the "Flying Fascist" will continue his flight to Rome.

FIVE FILM EXTRAS ARE FOUND GUILTY

Attorneys for the defendants, Mrs. Sarah Kerrick, widow; Anita Davis, Irls Burns, Joe Hunt and Henry Isabell, gave notice of appeal. The prisoners were guests at a Hollywood drinking party during which Kerrick was shot and killed.

GRAVE DIGGERS ATTACK SISTER

COLUMBUS, May 25.—George and Sallan Kell, grave diggers of Greenlaw Cemetery at Galloway, today were facing charges of assault and battery in justice court at Altos, as a result of an attack alleged to have been made at the graveside of their mother against their sister, Mrs. Olive Busick, Pleasant Corners. The trouble arose over a dispute about the mother's estate which developed when the trio visited the grave, Mrs. Busick charged.

CHIEF TAKES CUT BUT WON'T RESIGN

DOVER, O., May 25.—Dover's police force today was being guided by a $10 per month chief of police, and according to Police Chief William E. Byers, will continue to remain so for some time. Chief Byers refused to resign today, after being notified that the city council last night had reduced his monthly salary from $155 to $10 monthly, in attempt to have him resign. Byers has been chief here for three years.

AGED WOMAN DROWNS

Unkept Hands
Spoil Entire Effect

Every woman should have soft, white, youthful hands to complete the picture of attractiveness expected of her.

While eating, dancing, playing cards, in fact whatever you do, your hands are noticed as much as your complexion. You can't neglect them without spoiling the impression you make by being well groomed in every other detail.

The easiest way to keep your hands soft, white and firm is to massage them with the dainty lotion you can make by simply squeezing the juice of two lemons into a bottle of Orchard White, which you can get from your nearest dealer. It clears and refines the skin, making tanned and stained hands look like a queen's.

PENNSY COMPLETES INSTALLATION OF CROSSING SIGNALS

Installation of alternating danger signals by the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. at four city crossings, at a total cost said to approximate $4,000, was completed Tuesday and the safety devices put in operation immediately. The work has been in progress two months.

The signals have been installed at the Market, Main and Second Sts. and Cincinnati Ave. crossings. The company is removing crossing gates from the Second, Main and Market Sts. crossings and disposing of watchmen in a tower on Main St., who work in shifts and control a mechanism which operates drop gates for all three crossings. The watchmen at this point were James Kennedy and Patrick Whalen.

A crossing watchman will be stationed at the West St. crossing between 7 a. m. and 5 p. m. daily. Plans of the railroad also include the removal of the bell and arm signal at the West St. crossing.

The new signals are of the same design as the type in use at the Trebels crossing. The devices are placed on both sides of the rails on the right side of approaching traffic from either direction. They begin functioning when a train hits an electric circuit at a distance from the crossing, and resemble, to a driver from a distance, a swinging lantern.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Co. does not contemplate guarding its crossings in Xenia in like fashion at this time, it is said.

The Tiffany of Low-Priced Cars

The modern woman needs a personal car every hour of the day —and many have found the new Star Six to be the perfect companion. This fine car has two definite appeals to the woman of taste and good judgment: first, its inward and outward distinction; second, its unusual freedom from mechanical troubles. And of course there is a sensible economy that no woman overlooks. But most of all is its style and smartness—it is intentionally a proud car for proud buyers.

All we ask is that you DRIVE A STAR before you decide that any other low-priced car is "just as good." Then buy the car that suits you best.

Irresistible Beauty

Girls are so lovely when their hair fairly entices you to touch it and stroke its luxurious silkiness. That's why it is so noticeable when this part of one's toilette is neglected. There is such a decided contrast.

It is so easy, too, to keep the hair young, alive with its natural color and so soft it feels like marble, that there is no reason to deny yourself this daintiest charm. Two things will do it—your hair brush and Danderine. Get one of the generous 35c bottles of Danderine from your nearest dealer, wet your brush with a few dashes of it, and draw it through your hair clear to the scalp, with long, even strokes until each strand is alive and glowing, free from dandruff and that oily film which only Danderine can remove. It takes just a few minutes. There is nothing greasy about it, and it does not dry out the hair so that you have to use greasy things afterward to bring it back to life.

From then on you will enjoy the thrills which come to all girls who keep themselves good to look at, and you will never let a day go past without using Danderine. More than a million girls have made it a habit. It will help to keep in your waves.

CEMENT MILL TAKES PART IN CONCERTED SAFETY CAMPAIGN

Co-operating with 150 other cement mills in the United States, Canada and Cuba, one of the most concerted safety drives ever inaugurated by the entire industry, will begin June 1 in the Osborn plant of the Southwestern Portland Cement Co., as part of the nationwide campaign.

Plans for the drive, to be known as the "June No-Accident Campaign" are being announced by W. T. Groner, plant superintendent. Enrollment papers were signed Monday, the superintendent explained, in which the plant pledges its support in the national campaign.

Although the Osborn company has been exceedingly active in formation of plans to protect its workmen, arrangements are now being made for a local campaign expected to dwarf all past efforts and put the Osborn plant in the front rank with reference to industrial safety.

In order to carry the drive to every department and every individual worker in the cement mill, a safety committee composed of twenty foremen and executives has been appointed.

Beginning June 1, a green and white safety banner, presented by the Portland Cement Association, will fly from the flagstaff at the cement mill. It will stay up as long as the plant continues to operate without a time-lost accident. Every employee of the company will be on the alert to see that the flag is kept flying.

The safety campaign is sponsored by the Portland Cement Association and the National Safety Council.

NEW OHIO GAS TAX IS EFFECTIVE HERE

Gasoline at all filling stations in Xenia cost motorists one cent more Wednesday morning than formerly as at midnight Tuesday, the Sullivan tax law enacted by the 87th General Assembly, became effective.

Motorists now must pay a three-cent-per-gallon tax instead of the customary two-cent tax.

The additional tax of one cent is expected to bring $7,000,000 per year additional revenue, all of which will be devoted to state highway maintenance and construction and grade crossing elimination work.

The two-cent gas tax remains in effect along with its annual yield of $14,000.

BIBLE THOUGHT

STRENGTH AND WISDOM.—"With God is strength and wisdom: the deceived and the deceiver are his." Job 12:16.

REASON FOR BRITISH RAID

In explaining the reason for the raid on the soviet headquarters in London, Sir William Joynton-Hicks, the home secretary, declared that a valuable document had been stolen from the British offices and it was for the regaining of this that the raid was perpetrated.

Later it was explained that the document was not found in the headquarters.

There is something deeper in the raid than just what appears on the surface.

For many weeks there has been a strained relationship between the British government and the soviet authorities. It has been openly charged by the British that the Moscow government was carrying on a program of sedition and revolution within the British empire which was extremely detrimental to the best interests of the empire itself. The allegations met with a studied reply from Moscow in which a denial was made to all that was charged.

Yet it hardly seems possible that a government of the power and influence of the British, would openly make charges of so grave a character as the ones made against the soviet, and not have behind them the facts necessary to back them in every portion.

It may have been that some document had been stolen from the British foreign offices which was being sought in the soviet offices.

But deeper than that, it would seem, was perhaps the desire to obtain from those headquarters the secret propaganda which had been prepared and was being circulated through the empire, in order that the government might be in an even better position to defend itself against the undermining influences of the soviet, and have within its hands such documentary evidence of those activities which would bear no contravention when produced into the light of publicity.

The British government is an experienced and a shrewd bit of machinery. It has demonstrated this on many occasions.

The soviet raid seems to be but another move with a motive far deeper than any that has yet appeared on the surface.

EQUAL OPPORTUNITY

It is one of the fundamental tenets of our country that all men "are created equal"; and we are proud of repeating that statement. We might just as well bear in mind, though, that this statement refers to equality of right and opportunity, not of inborn ability.

This is emphasized by a report of Prof. M. V. O'Shea of the University of Wisconsin, who has made an extended survey of the public school systems of a certain state.

He found that the children, far from being "created equal" mentally, were in fact created very unequal. Only 35 percent of them fell within the normal mental age for the grades in which they were enrolled; 23 percent were above that mental age, and the remainder were mentally below it.

This is worth remembering. We weren't all born alike. Some men will always be born to be leaders and others will always be born to be followers. Our task is to see to it that all are given equal opportunities to develop the talents that lie within them. That is the extent of it.

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, May 25.—The responsibilities to the best interests of mankind, "How Much Do You Know" disease which succeeded the crossword puzzle in the public's pursuit of higher learning, has shattered the morale of the New York Public Library.

Employees are tottering on the brink of hysteria, which is worse than saying they are merely morbid.

Since the outbreak of this intellectual fever thousands of persons, aflame with passion for knowledge, have besieged the library to demand the right, as taxpayers, to know the maiden name of Omar Khayyam's mother, and whether Martin Luther or Ike Walton was mixed up with the Diet of Worms.

The present disease has not yet attained the proportions of the crossword puzzle plague. In 1922-23 the library was forced to retire the unabridged dictionary sets and the encyclopedia from the open shelves. The only way you could consult one of those books was by convincing the librarian that your purpose was "intellectual research," and had nothing to do with the crossword puzzle.

The director of the main reading rooms says he has the "Ask Me Another" situation well in hand, but if the run on the dictionaries and the encyclopedia grows any greater, precautions will again have to be taken. At the library they operate on the principle that it's better for the public to remain ignorant of the maiden name of Omar Khayyam's mother, than that some serious student of paleontology, entomology, Chinese chess or to look at the reference books.

Talbot Williams, director emeritus of the Pulitzer School of Journalism at Columbia University, delivered the valedictory address to the graduating journalism class the other day, charging them to realize continually the responsibilities of their profession, and ever seek to discharge their responsibilities.

"I don't think so," sighed the tired New Yorker. "It wasn't there last night."

Growling

KELLYGRAMS by FRED C KELLY

WHERE LACK OF PROGRESS IS SUCCESSFUL

After talking with my old friend, Ed Norwood, of the Ringling circus, about various problems of conducting a tented show, it occurred to me that here is the most conservative line of business on earth.

The public likes novelty, somebody is always saying. But how much novelty would the public tolerate in a circus? Doesn't the whole success of the circus business lie in having everything pretty much as it used to be?

What youngster would crawl out of bed before daylight to see 'em unload, if all the circus stuff were hauled on motor trucks?

In a circus, modern labor-saving devices would be fatal. What man who has seen five or six experts swinging their sledge-hammers over a tent stake, could have a soul so dead that he would rather see stakes driven by machinery?

Whenever a circus ceases to preserve the primitive, it is doomed. It might as well quit using a tent and become a hall show.

The man who takes his boy to a circus wants to find the same blue seats the same big blatant banners in front of the side show, that he himself used to know. And the boy wants to see what he has heard dad tell about.

I've noticed, too, that a circus appeals to conservative folk—people who like old-fashioned things and decent things. Go and look at the crowd coming out of the theater where a modern obscene drama or revue is playing and then compare it with the crowd in a circus tent. Those who attend the circus may have less fashionable clothes—though even that isn't always true—but they are substantial citizens who like to go to entertainments where they can take the kids along, and who like simple pleasures, such as munching peanuts.

And by the way, did you ever know a man who liked to whittle or eat peanuts who was ever wicked? A peanut eater may be a villain, but nevertheless, and notwithstanding, he's usually a fellow that you can tie to!

Steve Rathbun, dramatic critic, not having anything better to do the other night, crawled back about nine feet into the dim and distant past, emerging with a wad of data showing how the exit of the horse and wagon era increased the number of New York's playhouses.

The Winter Garden used to be a horse man known as the American Horse Exchange. The old Joison Theatre was the location for many years of the Central Park Riding Academy. The Princess on Thirty-ninth St. was first a stable and later a garage. The Provincetown Playhouse in McDougal St. is another ex-livory stable.

"A playhouse," says Brother Rathbun, "is much more of a civic asset than a livory stable; but if these new spring dramas do not improve in quality, one will wish there were more livory stables and less theaters."

An out-of-town visitor, catching his first glimpse of the huge Paramount building that occupies the block between Forty-third and Forty-fourth streets on Broadway said to the Manhattan dweller: "Did I see that building here last evening?"

"I don't think so," sighed the tired New Yorker. "It wasn't there last night."

DEGREE FOR BUTLER

ROME, May 25.—The University of Rome today granted an honorary degree of doctor of laws to President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University, New York City, in appreciation of Dr. Butler's services for Italy.

The senior class of Central High School converted the Opera House into a charmingly pretty place for its class night exercises last night. And by the way, did you ever know a man who liked to whittle or eat peanuts who was ever wicked? A peanut eater may be a villain, but nevertheless, and notwithstanding, he's usually a fellow that you can tie to!

The high school "Arena," published every two weeks, has just issued its sixteenth number. Frank Hustmyer, who conducts a grocery on Cincinnati Ave., has become half owner of the National Billiard Hall, of which Clarence Herr has been proprietor.

How to Achieve Beauty

THE HOME MANICURE

Today, we are going to consider the home manicure. This is a simple beauty rite and one which has fewer secrets than any other phase of beauty culture. The only real secret about it is frequency, common sense and a true valuation of its great importance.

Before I proceed to talk about the manicure itself and the tools necessary for same, I want to say that the regular use of a good quality nail brush every time you wash your hands, together with pushing back the cuticle are two things which simplify the home manicure.

The only tools needed for the manicure are the following: A dish or small bowl of warm soapy water, an orange wood stick, a small piece of cotton, buffer, cuticle remover, liquid polish remover and perhaps a little rosey tint and polish. I always finish my nails with an application of liquid polish as I like the protection from breaking which I find the latter gives.

To me, too-long or too-highly tinted nails are among the affected things, which only one woman in many dare adopt. The order of the manicure rites are as follows:

First apply a little polish remover to a bit of cotton and rub it over the nails, then file them, aiming at an elongated oval or a modified point—next dip the fingers in warm soapy water. Let them soak for a few minutes.

Then dry and smooth any slightly rough edges with the emery board. Work the cuticle back with the orange stick, about which should be wound a bit of cotton and a little of the cuticle remover or applied. Then draw the cotton edge of the orange stick under the nail as to thoroughly cleanse it of any particles which may have remained there after the soap and water soaking.

To whiten the tips of the nails slightly, you can procure little white cords, to which a whitener has already been applied, and by dipping these in water and then drawing them under the nails, you will find just enough white will remain.

Now, your nails are ready for the application of your liquid polish. If you find your liquid polish has become slightly thickened in the bottle, you can thin it out by adding a little of the liquid remover. Also be sure to keep the brush in the bottle of polish when not using it, as there are certain chemicals in the liquid that keeps the brush from becoming stiff.

Be careful to apply your liquid polish smoothly and let it dry well before using your hands or it is liable to smear.

IT WAS IN the PAPER

Did you READ it?

Here are six questions dealing with news events of the past few days which have been reported in The Evening Gazette and The Morning Republican. Can you answer them accurately? If you can, you may claim credit as a really intelligent reader; but if you fail, that means you merely skim the news, as so many people do. Answers on Classified Page.

QUESTIONS

1. What British baronet was arrested on charges preferred by a haidresser's assistant? What were they?
2. What noted educator is dead in the east? Of what college was he the president?
3. What proposed railway merger was rejected by the Interstate Commerce Commission? By whom was it planned?
4. In what state has a woman been sentenced to hang? What was the crime?
5. For what former president of a foreign republic have warrants been issued in this country? Why?
6. What two heavyweight pugilists from the same city recently fought? Who won and by what route? Who is the winner supposed to be scheduled to meet next?

MAKING MODERN MENUS

Mrs. Jones—"Did you have a nice time at Widow Zane's yesterday afternoon?"

Mrs. Brown—"Indeed I did. You know she used to be a wonderful cook and she gave me some of her best recipes. I tried one last night, pudding, and it was delicious."

RICE AND FRUIT PUDDING

Steam one cup of rice with a little salt in a double boiler. When done put in a buttered baking dish. Make a thin custard of two cups of milk, half cup of sugar and two eggs, well beaten. Pour this over rice. Take tart apples, slice thin, thoroughly cover rice and add plenty of brown sugar to cover apples. Bake till apples are done. This is delicious and will be made often if once tried. Any fruit can be substituted in place of apples, but we think the tart apples are the best.

Keeping HEALTHY by Dr. A. F. Currier

POLYPI OF THE NOSE

Many people are troubled with obstruction in the nasal cavities, interfering with their breathing, causing them ance, worse usually in moist than in dry weather.

When trouble of this kind begins it seldom gets better of itself, except when the weather is unusually dry, and constantly tends to get worse.

In many of the cases of this kind the trouble is due to a polypus or several of them, perhaps to a bunch of them, resembling a bunch of grapes, and when several of them are thus crowded into one or both sides of the nose it is easy to see how uncomfortable they may make the person who is the victim.

Now these polypi, or tumors, are merely outgrowths from the mucous membrane of the nose, which is not a smooth, flat tissue like the skin on the outside of the body, but is laid down in folds and ramifications as it covers the irregular structures and cavities which form the nasal apparatus.

One who is subject to nasal catarrh (and who is not in this climate?) is constantly affected with colds, especially in early life, and that means gradual and permanent thickening of the mucous membrane and predisposition to polyp.

Those who are thus afflicted are constantly blowing their nose to clear away obstructions or to facilitate breathing.

By and by the membrane on the end of one of the irregular structures of the nose, one of the turbinated bones, for instance, begins to stretch and lengthen as the result of this constant irritation, and that is the beginning of polypus.

In the course of months or years the polypus become well-formed as rounded tumors with longer or shorter pedicles of attachment, which move up and down with the efforts of breathing, or perhaps become a simple obstructing mass clogging up one or both nasal passages.

A person thus afflicted necessarily becomes a mouth breather, he is always in trouble with his nose, constantly requiring the use of the handkerchief, while his mouth is constantly dry and uncomfortable.

The voice of those who are thus afflicted becomes nasal and unpleasant in character, cough is often present and troublesome, asthma or difficult breathing is persistent, and there may be painful neuralgia.

Hay fever is both a cause and a consequence of polyp, the shape of the nose may undergo deforming change, and epilepsy, if not caused by them, is very often associated with them.

Polypi are sometimes difficult to locate and when discovered they are often unsuccessfully treated with astringent sprays and irrigating lotions.

The best and most satisfactory method of treatment consists in their removal, and a good nose and throat surgeon will make quick work of them.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mrs. P.: 1. Please tell me what to do for a severe case of catarrh of long standing. Would you recommend a blood or local remedy of the advertised sort? 2. My daughter's hands give her great trouble from itching. The skin splits and gets very sore. Salves from doctors relieve only temporarily and then the trouble and breaking out return.

Answer—1. I suppose you mean nasal catarrh, which is the most common ailment in this country for those who live where the climate is moist. If the trouble is very annoying and likely to lead to something serious, I have always felt it proper to advise removal to a drier and higher climate. If it is not very bad one must cultivate patience with it and use spray and gargles which are antiseptic and astringent continually. I do not recall any advertised preparation I would care to recommend. Many of them, perhaps most of them, are entirely ineffective made to sell and separate people's money from them. A gargle and spray of boracic acid, menthol, eucalyptol or bicarbonate of soda, costs less and is often a means of relief, if only temporary.

2. If you had read my articles on Winter Itch and Chapped Hands and Lips recently published, they would have answered your question. The trouble is seasonal and disappears when spring returns.

WON BY HIMSELF
NEW YORK, May 25.—Although 7,813 racing enthusiasts and handicappers in these United States picked Millwick to win the fourth race at Belmont yesterday, they were not a nickel richer today. Because of unfavorable track conditions every other horse in the race was scratched, and Millwick ran around all by himself.
It was the first one-horse race since Exterminator "won" a similar race at Saratoga several years ago.

JOHNNY RISKIO WILL FIGHT DAYTON BOY

Joe Seykra, Dayton heavyweight, and Johnny Riskio, Cleveland's contender for heavyweight honors, who enjoys the distinction of never having been knocked out, have been matched for a twelve-round decision bout Monday night, June 6, in the first open-air show of the season at North Side Field, Dayton.
About two months ago, the boxing commission turned down the bout, considering Seykra incapable of battling a tough fellow like Riskio, but Joe's sensational string of victories in the past sixty days over such fighters as Sully Montgomery, Roscoe Rojas, Mike Wallace, Bob Fitzsimmons and a half dozen or more lesser lights, has caused a change of heart and the bout has been sanctioned.
It is understood that Riskio is getting the largest guarantee ever given a fighter to appear in Dayton.

Many Minds SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"The doctrine of evolution makes the universe intelligible. It unlocks the doors of many things which before were mysterious. In its light we study all branches of knowledge with a new understanding."—Rev. Frank Pratt, D. D.

"Organized religion undoubtedly has a great many things to answer for. It has been guilty of persecution and obscurantism. But if organized religion has much to answer for, so also have organized government and organized business."—Professor David S. Muzzey.

"Necessity says, 'you must get an education,' and the child says, 'isn't school glorious!' Necessity says, 'you must help your mother with the housework,' and the child says, 'I love housework!' Necessity says, 'you must make your money at this kind of toil,' and the man says, 'that is a most interesting kind of toil, let me at it!'"—Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick.

JUST A HARMLESS JOKE

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—William R. Skillman tried to run for assemblyman. Feeling he was not attracting enough attention, it is alleged he telegraphed newspapers under an assumed name charging that he was living with a woman not his wife. The telegrams were traced and he was brought to account, whereupon he neatly explained that it was both true and harmless, since he is living with his mother.

KELLY IMPROVES

NEW YORK, May 25.—George Kelly of the Cincinnati Reds, who was operated on for acute appendicitis here yesterday, was reported doing nicely today. He will not be able to return to the game for at least a month.

HOW TO PLAY BASEBALL Keep On Top Of The Ball

AS TOLD BY STARS OF THE GAME

By "BABE" PINELLI
Third Baseman, Cincinnati Reds
To play third base successfully the first thing to learn is to get in front of every ball possible. By doing so, a ball that takes a bad hop gives you a possible play. On the other hand, when played to either side, nine times out of ten the ball is not fielded or judged perfectly and the play is lost. The batter should be studied, noticing to which field he hits more often. If the batter is a dead left field hitter, play closer to the line; if he hits mostly to right, move nearer the shortstop. Always be alert for bunts and until there are two out.

play a few feet ahead of the bag, particularly with a left-handed hitter up, with a man on first and no outs. Try to handle a bunt with speed for a force play at second. Study the different hitters who are fast. Look for a bunt then field accordingly. If a hitter is slow of foot and seldom bunts, play him a few feet back of third base. This enables you to cover more territory. Above all things have lots of pep and always bear in mind how many outs there are during the game.

APPROVE SALE

"Nothing but blue skies from now on"

LIKE the fellow in the song, I "never saw the sun shining so bright—never saw things going so right." For I've found Prince Albert and complete pipe-enjoyment. I thought I knew all about pipes and pipe-smoking. I had no idea what a change for the better P.A. would be.

What a treat it was to open the tidy red tin and free that wonderful Prince Albert fragrance! To a pipe-hungry man, no other aroma ever came within a mile of that. I could hardly wait to tumble a load into the bowl of my jimmy-pipe and light up. And then... that marvelous taste!

PRINCE ALBERT

—the national joy smoke!

Cool as a summons to court. Sweet as winning your case. Mild as the congratulations of the second-best man. Mild, but with a full, rich tobacco body that satisfies your smoke-hankering to the absolute limit. I'm talking about a grand old pipe-smoke, Men... Prince Albert.

No matter how satisfied you appear to be with your present set-up, give Prince Albert a whirl. You'll never know till then what a friend your pipe can be. P.A. never bites the tongue or parches the throat. It never wears out its welcome. Try this long-burning tobacco. You'll check with all I've said.

The Rovin' Ritzies

By Flo Frederick

Where the Birds Choose to Nest. Will be the Final Test. Marty had put the finishing touches on his blue jay bungalow and his Ritzie comrades were standing about the carpenter shop admiring it.

"I wish I could make a bird house like that," said Rag, gazing enviously at the white-painted bungalow.

"Why, anyone can build a bird house," said Marty. "Some birds like a house that is made out of a couple of sticks rather than one like this."

"I think I'll try to make one," Rag had always wanted a bird house of his own and it seemed rather cowardly not to give it a try.

"If you do, I'll try my hand at one too," joined in Tag. He refused to be outdone by his twin brother.

"Let's have a contest," suggested Patsy. "Betty Ann and I can make bird houses if the twins can. What all we have as a prize for the best bird house?"

"I'll build a bird bath for the one who builds the best house," offered Marty, "and the contest will close a week from today."

"That's not time enough," argued Tag.

"Oh, yes, it is," said Marty, firmly.

faces at the meeting he had called. "Well, Rag," said Marty, "you were the first to want to build a bird house. What have you got to say for yourself?"

Rag disappeared and returned a minute later holding a flat board with four tin-can bird houses nailed in place. The top of each can had been bent back and nailed to the board holding the can tightly against it. A little doorway had been cut (with a can opener) in the other end of each can and the piece of tin bent back to form a porch for the house.

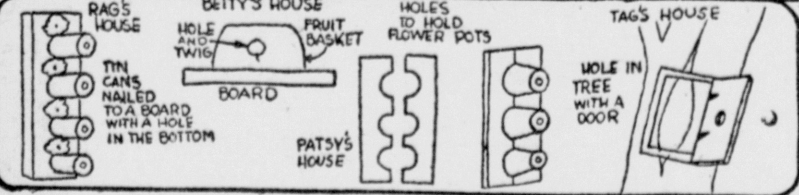

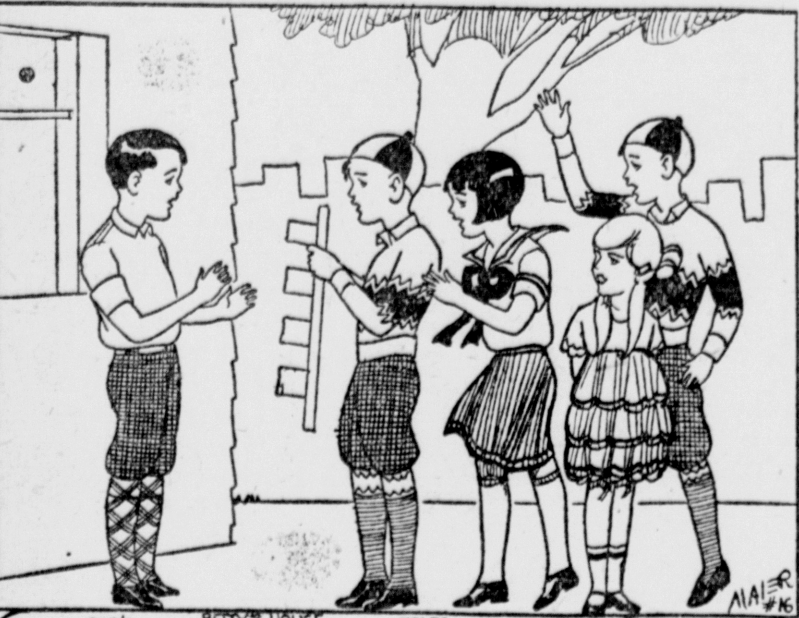

"That's mighty clever," said Marty. "Try to beat that, Betty Ann."

Betty Ann produced a fruit basket bird house that had been nailed to a board. A hole in the side with a stick for a perch led the way to this spacious bird home.

Though it was a delicate house and needed to be placed in a sheltered place, Betty Ann had greatly surprised Marty with her skill.

Patsy had made still another very different house, or rather a whole group of wren houses. She had enlarged the holes in the bottoms of flower pots and placed them between two boards that had been cut out to hold the pots firmly in place.

Marty now understood why Patsy had asked so many questions about

ly. "It doesn't take long when you get at it."

This started the famous Ritzie bird contest. The following week the Ritzies kept pretty much to themselves, but mysterious things happened all along.

Rag was seen searching through the ash cans. Patsy rummaged through the basement, and one afternoon, after asking Marty innumerable questions about how to cut half circles in a piece of wood, had asked to be left alone in the little carpenter shop.

Tag, who had never been known to stay home, spent every afternoon in his own yard. Betty Ann dashed into the carpenter shop one day to borrow "the thing you bore holes with" and then didn't have a minute's time to stay and visit.

In spite of all these unusual happenings, Marty couldn't see that the contest was making much progress. No one had asked to borrow a saw or use any of his lumber. He decided to himself that his fellow club members weren't trying to make their houses and were staying away from the shop to avoid being questioned.

He did not look very well pleased on the closing day of the contest, though the other Ritzie club members arrived with beaming half-circles and how to make them. When it came Tag's turn to show his house, he led them over to his yard, where he proudly displayed a built-in house in the trunk of an old tree. He had cleaned out a hollow in the tree, fastened strips around the edge, and put on a hinge door with a little round opening for a door. A twig made the perch where the bird could sit and sun itself.

"You folks are too clever," said Marty, quite overcome with this wealth of new ideas in bird houses. "I am not a fit judge at all. Suppose we leave it up to the birds. Put up your houses, and the first one to have a bird take possession will win the bird bath that I am making."

This was certainly turning out to be a great contest—having the birds as judges! How eagerly the Ritzies watched for their bird tenants.

What the birds' decision about the houses will be told in another story.

The Ritzies' bird houses are very practical ones and easy to make. If you aren't a carpenter like Marty, try your luck with tin cans, flower pots or fruit baskets like the rest of the Ritzies. If there is a hollow in one of your trees, be sure to make a tree nest like Tag's.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:

The entrance of America into the World War finds Philip Wayne Tracy IV suffering from the collapse of his first, passionate love affair. Before this, he and Natalie Jones, who is the daughter of the Tracy millman, had had a childish engagement which, however, had been objected to by both Mrs. Tracy and Mr. Jones.

Philip's mother plans to interest her son in other girls and decides to give him a party. She tells him of the impending visit of her friend, Lynn Hilliard, and unconsciously arouses his interest in the woman. On a wedding trip, Lynn confesses her love to Philip. The whole affair ends in nothingness, however, because war is declared. Rod and Philip are the first to enlist.

Lynn writes a cruel letter to Philip and leaves without seeing either him or his mother. Natalie accuses Mrs. Tracy of sending her boy to war to save him from her, and Mrs. Tracy replies, "I am sending him to war, my dear, to save him for you."

On the eve of leaving for the barracks, Rod understands from some of the boys that the affair between himself and Lynn is broken off.

Here the story further unfolds—
